

Dr. Emmanuel Lalande

Vice President for Student Services

- Ed.D. Nova Southern University (Organizational Leadership)
- M.Ed. Delaware State University (Educational Leadership)

Dr. Emmanuel Lalande serves as the vice president for student services.

Prior to coming to CBS, Dr. Lalande served 17 years in higher education with a focus on creating affordable and accessible avenues for students. Dr. Lalande has led efforts to streamline enrollment processes for all students including the implementation of online registration to better service students. Dr. Lalande's leadership experience extends through student affairs, enrollment management, student success, student services, financial aid and scholarships, TRIO student support services, Upward Bound, international programs, student conduct, student engagement, counseling and prevention services, student health services, food services, new student orientation, family programs, auxiliary services, and more.

Dr. Lalande and his wife Tamara have three daughters, Emani, Tara, and Aliya.

Articles and Conference Presentations

An open letter to our students: Recent racial incidents involving police are enraging students at our HBCU, and for their sake we need to reopen (2020). The Hechinger Report.

Nipsey Huddle forces us to rethink black male achievement in higher education (2019). HBCU Digest.

Meet 8 HBCU presidents of the future (2019). HBCU Digest. Co-authored with J. Carter.

Benedict College's Bold Move to Lower Tuition: Ask Us, Why Not? (2018). Diverse Issues in Higher Education

How HBCU presidential transitions impact student affairs and enrollment management. (2018). HBCU Digest.