I was born in El Salvador as the youngest of six children. Our family lived in a modest home without running water, electricity, or even finished floors—just packed dirt beneath our feet. My father never learned to read or write, and my mother’s formal education ended after the second grade. When the civil war in El Salvador intensified, we immigrated to the United States just before my eighth birthday in search of safety and a better future. I did not grow up in a Christian household, but in my senior year of high school, the Lord graciously opened my eyes and drew me to Himself, transforming the course of my life.

After graduating from high school, I enlisted in the United States Army, serving from 1995 to 1999. My time in the military shaped my character, deepened my discipline, and instilled in me a heart for service. Following my military service, the Lord opened doors for me to serve in a variety of ministry roles, including Children’s Ministry, Youth Ministry, Youth and Young Adults Ministry, and Pastoral Ministry. In 2007, I began serving as a professor at the College of Biblical Studies, where I have the privilege of equipping and mentoring students for gospel-centered ministry. Since 2009, I have also served as the pastor of Reunion Church in Pearland, Texas, where our mission is to share the message of hope and healing through the gospel.

I am married to my wonderful wife, Marisol, and together we are the proud parents of four children—Alexia, Caleb, Lucas, and Silas. Family time is a priority for us, and we treasure every opportunity to be together. I especially enjoy going on road trips, discovering new places, and making unforgettable memories along the way. In my downtime, I enjoy unwinding with a good book, watching an engaging movie, and rooting for my hometown teams—the Houston Rockets, Astros, and Texans.
