

Dr. John Mark N. Reynolds

Vice President of Advancement and Strategic Leadership

- Ph.D., M.A., University of Rochester (Logic, Philosophy of Religion, Ancient Philosophy)
- B.A., Roberts Wesleyan College (Religion and Philosophy)
- Diploma, Elim Bible Institute (Bible)

Career Experience

Dr. John Mark Reynolds has a proven history of launching, developing, and building successful programs. He served as the founding director of Torrey Honors College at Biola University and later as Provost at Houston Christian University, where he helped launch graduate studies in apologetics as well as a cinema and new media arts program. He also continued his work in educational development as the founding president of The Saint Constantine Schools and College.

Dr. Reynolds has served as a writer, blogger, talk radio personality, and apologetics speaker, engaging audiences both nationally and internationally. His commitment to evangelism and education began during his time in Bible school, where he developed a particular calling to serve and educate in urban communities.

His goal is to support the mission of CBS by helping strengthen strategy, align resources around a shared vision, and build a strong, sustainable future under the leadership and direction of the President.

Personal

John Mark and Hope have been joyfully married for forty years. They are the proud parents of four adult children and grandparents of two. As the son of a pastor, John Mark was raised with a strong foundation of faith and service. He and Hope first met at the Christian school his parents helped establish.

Publications and Presentations

Dr. Reynolds is a longtime blogger for Patheos Evangelical and the author of When Athens Met Jerusalem. He is also the editor of The Great Books Reader and has edited several additional works. His scholarship includes numerous published book chapters and articles.

He is a longtime fellow at the Discovery Institute, building on his work with Phillip Johnson in the area of intelligent design. Their collaborative work includes Against All Gods.

Dr. Reynolds has also been a leader in the revival of classical Christian education and has spoken at numerous conferences on classical education, Christian thought, apologetics, and the renewal of classical approaches to teaching and learning.